

WIDA Domain Exemption Process Guide

2026 Edition

Domain Exemption for English Learners with Disabilities Whose IEP or 504 Precludes Assessment in One or More Domain on WIDA ACCESS®/WIDA Screener®

Alaska has established domain exemption procedures to calculate an overall composite proficiency level (CPL) for English learners (ELs) with a disability whose disability precludes their assessment in one or more domain on WIDA ACCESS or WIDA Screener. The calculation of the CPL allows the student to be considered for exit from EL status, as well as be included in calculations for growth on the EL Progress Indicator of our statewide accountability system, the System for School Success, and when being screened for EL eligibility.

In determining which student situation might be eligible for a domain exemption, administrators and teachers must determine that the student meets all three of the following criteria:

- The student has a documented disability or impairment (IEP or 504) applicable to the domain(s);
- Even with available accommodations, the student cannot engage with (access) the domain; and
- The 504 plan or IEP team, in consultation with the educator(s) supporting student's English language development, have established a need for a domain exemption.

It is essential that the team include participants who have the requisite knowledge of the child's English language development needs. The determination to exempt a domain must be documented and approval for a domain exemption must be obtained from DEED.

Timeline for Applying for a Domain Exemption:

Sep 1 – Dec 31	Districts complete and submit the request for a domain exemption to DEED
Jan 1 – Jan 31	DEED responds to district requests
Jan 31 – Mar 1	Districts may appeal DEED's decision
Feb 1 – Mar 31	Administer WIDA ACCESS
Mid-late June	DEED provides manually calculated overall proficiency level (CPL) to districts for approved students
Beginning of Year (and as needed throughout)	Districts complete and submit the request for a domain exemption to DEED for students needing to be screened for EL eligibility. DEED responds to district requests

Process for Applying for Domain Exemptions:

Frequently Asked Questions about Domain Exemption

Q: Who are the candidates for domain exemption?

A: Candidates for domain exemption are English learners with a documented disability that does not allow them to engage with the domain, even with available accommodations. For example, a student who is deaf might be exempt from taking the listening domain or a student who is nonverbal might be exempt from taking the speaking domain. However, a student with a speech impediment that hampers clear articulation, but engages in verbal exchange, should participate in assessing her or his English speaking skills. A student who can access a domain, even if supporting educators question the soundness of the subsequent scores due to the nature of a student's response, are not candidates for domain exemption.

Q: Who should be part of the student team responsible for making the decision to exempt a student from a domain and apply for domain exemption?

A: It is recommended that the following members be included on the decision making team:

- At least one expert on the student's English language acquisition
- At least one expert on the student's special education goals and services
- At least one expert on the student's general education content achievement
- At least one family member (and any requisite interpreters/cultural liaisons to ensure family members' full participation in the team)
- Any related service providers who work with the student

Q: Can a student who is reading multiple grades below grade level be exempted from the reading domain?

A: A student may be excused from a domain only if he or she is unable to participate in that domain due to their disability and not a lack of instruction or opportunity to learn. For example, it may be appropriate to exempt a student who is blind and cannot read Braille from the reading domain. However, an English learner (EL) reading below grade level is still a reader and would not qualify for an exemption. In some cases, recently arrived ELs have had no previous language instruction, even in their native language, and so may just be beginning to develop fundamental reading skills such as phonological awareness or decoding skills. These students would not qualify for domain exemption unless teams have evidence that it is the student's disability that is causing their inability to access the reading domain and not the student's lack of previous instruction or opportunity.

Q: For a student to receive domain exemption, should the decision to exempt the student from a particular domain be documented?

A: Yes. It is the responsibility of the district to determine eligibility and to document the domain exemption. Domain exemption decisions should be made and documented with input from Special Education leadership or relevant 504 coordinators. All cases of domain exemption are subject to monitoring by the Alaska Department of Education and Early Development.

Q: Will I have to apply each year for the same student, even though their disability is unchanging?

A: Yes. Because IEP and 504 goals can change, you will have to apply each year.

Q: If a student is granted domain exemption, how will the overall composite proficiency level (CPL) be calculated?

A: The CPL will be calculated using redistributed weighting. Currently, the listening and speaking domains each account for 15% of the CPL. Reading and writing each account for 35%. The table below outlines the redistributed weights based on a single exempted domain. If more than one domain were exempted, a similar table would be used.

	Listening	Speaking	Reading	Writing
All domains	15%	15%	35%	35%
No Listening	X	18%	41%	41%
No Speaking	18%	X	41%	41%
No Reading	23%	23%	X	54%
No Writing	23%	23%	54%	X

Q: What is the exit criteria for a student who is granted a domain exemption?

A: The current statewide exit criteria, which applies to ALL English learners, is an overall composite proficiency level of 4.5 or higher on tier B or tier C of WIDA ACCESS. Students completing WIDA Alternate ACCESS must achieve an overall composite proficiency level of 4.0 or higher.

A student completing with a domain exemption would exit English learner status if they met minimum overall composite score after redistribution of the weights. Table 1 below shows an example of a student completing WIDA ACCESS with a domain exemption for the speaking domain who met exit criteria. Table 2 shows a similar example for a student completing WIDA ACCESS with a domain exemption for the reading domain who did not meet exit criteria.

Table 1	Listening	Speaking	Reading	Writing	Overall
Score	4.1	X	6.0	4.1	4.7

Table 2	Listening	Speaking	Reading	Writing	Overall
Score	4.1	3.8	X	4.1	4.0
